A Guide to Mischief By the Mischief Master - @therealyetiman

As most of you probably already know Yetis do like to get into mischief. At yeti towers we have two levels of mischief

1. Mischief against my yeti brother and cousins
2. Mischief against the humans

Here is a brief guide to each type of mischief:

Mischief against a plushie family member.

This can be lots of fun especially if you have a stupid brother like me. I always suggest you set a trap of some sort to catch your family member, this can range from trip wires to mouse traps with some chocolate on them. I don't know why but my brother always seems to scream lots when his foot gets caught in a mouse trap. Once you have captured your family member this is where the fun begins!

My favourites are wrapping my brother in kitchen foil (see above) and either pretending to BBQ or cook them in the oven or tying them up then hanging them from the ceiling and using them as a piñata.

Remember though folks this is all fun and no actual buddies or family members should be hurt.....unless its yeti brother of course ;) What you have to be very careful of is the people who you act out the mischief on getting their revenge because often they will be very angry and feeling extra mischievous. My brother has managed to get his own back once or twice and trust me when he has it has been bad for me. So always keep an eye out for revenge attacks!!

Hello Everyone,

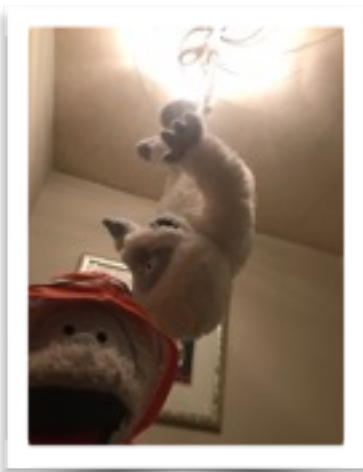

Here we are, marching into March, and as ever, we've got a packed Pets' Mews for you. Here's what you've got in store.

Mischief against humans.

Now this is a high level skill not to be tried by the first time mischief makers. If you get caught by your humans they will be extra mad and will seek revenge and lets face it they control a fair bit of our lives so its not hard for them to do this! One of our most favourite human mischiefs is when we take our sneaky dad shots! Yeti dad does not like social media or having his photo taken and if he ever caught us, quite honestly, we would be passed onto evil children who would want to play with us (this is the worse possible outcome!). We find the best way to catch him out is by letting him walk on ahead and making sure he is distracted then snap away and post the photo to Instagram for all our friends to see. You have to make sure you hide the camera very quickly so they don't catch you.

Our other favourite human mischief is drinking all their yeti pops this annoys both yeti mum and dad equally an adds extra mischief to the plan because quite often they blame each other!!! Having some buddies to help reach the fridge is a must for this task and also making sure one of you knows which you need to drink because trust me you don't want to be drinking chilli sauce by accident. For added mischief you can even drink all the bottles of yeti pops then fill them full of water so it looks like they are still full.

We hoped you liked our short guide to mischief and look forwards to seeing some of your attempts. If you want any more mischief tips feel free to DM us on Instagram and the yetis will see if we can help!

#plushiebookclub & International Book Month (kind of)

In the UK, World Book Day is celebrated on the first Thursday of March. Yay! But according to Wiki, International Book Day is actually in April. Hum. But in any case, it's sometime soon, and surely every day is book day (if you are a book cat like me it is anyway), so here's a round up of what you lot recommend.

“Can you recommend a book that you've read recently, (or a long time ago) that you would recommend and write one line about why you like it. The choice is yours - any genre, any style, any story.”

Iris has decided her favourite book that she's read is 'The Guernsey Literary and Potato Peel Pie Society'. A brief synopsis: this book takes place in the once German occupied island of Guernsey. During the occupation several friends came up with a plan to meet up to discuss their favourite books. After the war books were scarce on the island and they contacted a writer from London looking for help to get more books. The writer, Juliet, starts corresponding with the group, ends up moving to Guernsey and falls love. Of course there's a bit more to the story but we don't want to give it all away. Iris gives it two hooves up.

I've decided on 'Wild' by Cheryl Strayed. It's an autobiographical story about how a woman put her life back together after she lost everything by going out onto the Pacific Crest Trail (PCT) to find herself. I'm kind of obsessed with the Pacific Crest Trail... this is the book that started it all. I've picked this one because I learnt from it that you are stronger than you think and capable of anything if you put your mind to it. #docssundaybookclub

‘The Elegance of the Hedgehog’ by Muriel Barbery. A lovely tender story of a concierge in a Paris apartment building. It is beautifully told and offers many reflections on beauty, art, life...love it so!

I like this book on photo. It's Russian translation of Typisch Bär! Geschichten zum Vorlesen by Hubert Schirneck. It's kind and funny story.

@rokko\_li

Last up was finally ‘98 % Pure Potato’ - a book about Strategic Planning and Advertising. But an All time favourite is the ‘Virginie suicides’ since it is so very melancholy.

We recommend that book in the picture it’s called “The legend of sneek a boos” by our very own @sneekaboos . We like the book because it became a Halloween tradition for us! The art in the book is so cute and the story is very touching and leaves you with a smile on your face each time you read it.

As I'm a Christian, I think I will recommend the Bible or related books. I especially like the story of the Good Samaritan (from the Book of Luke 10:30-37). A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he met some horrible robbers, who stripped him and beat him, and departed, leaving him half dead. Some supposedly 'good men' passed by - a priest and a Levite saw him, but they didn't want to help and went by on the other side.

But a Samaritan (who in those days people thought were a bit strange and not very nice) saw the poor man who had been robbed. He had compassion, cleaned him up, took him to an inn, and took care of him. And the next day he took out two denarii (quite a lot of money) and gave them to the innkeeper, saying, 'Take care of him; and whatever more you spend, I will repay you when I come back.'

The story is very touching. It lets us know that to Love is to "give and care" for each other regardless of differences in nationality, religious and culture background

Oh! We would like to recommend "Pax" by Sarah Pennypacker! A story about a Fox and his boy. It's recommended from 9 years, but it's a good story for any age above. It's an adventure about being separated from all you used to know, finding your way "home" and finding out where you belong. Beautiful (but few) illustrations by Jon Klassen.

And "The unlikely pilgrimage of Harold Fry" and "The love song of miss Queenie Hennessy" by Rachel Joyce. Beautiful stories about something that once took place, told from two different angles. For adult readers.

CT is reading me the Honey Grove newspaper from November for Talulah Reading Sunday. It's just our size! #talulahreadingsunday. And a favourite is the 'Velveteen Rabbit' - "Once you are real, you can't become unreal again; it lasts for always."

And me? Well, I've just read 'A Place Called Here' by Cecilia Ahern. Her books are modern day fairy tales that take you to another place. And now of course, I want to read all these recommendations too!

PS: Don't forget, if you're looking for a plushie-eye-view to New York, check out our very own ebook. You can buy it now from the iBookstore in English and Russian, or for eReaders in English and Russian and part of the profits will go to charity.
